BRAMIDAN[®]

Strengthen the logistics chain with a baler

Warehouses and distribution centres are crucial crossroads where time is of the essence. Customers demand clockwork efficiency and there is no room for delays.

In such dynamic environments waste can accumulate quickly, as the many different shipments often need to be re-packed into smaller units before leaving the facility again.

The resulting empty cardboard boxes, and soft plastic waste can quickly block floor space. This is why it must be disposed of before it gets in the way. In many facilities this involves collecting the waste and carrying it outside to large containers, which are collected regularly. Although doing this does move the waste away from the floor, it also takes time from other and more important tasks.

By treating waste management as an integrated part of the overall workflow throughout the warehouse, it is possible to optimise internal processes with a clear and tangible positive effect on your bottom line.

Streamline processes

Bramidan balers compact waste into high-density bales, enabling you to instantly save time on internal waste handling. By compacting waste close to the source, you reduce the number of trips to the outdoor containers. At the same time they help you reduce costs related to waste collection and container rental.

Bottom line advantage

Place a Bramidan baler in the packaging area and remove your cardboard and soft plastic waste from the goods reception area quickly and efficiently.

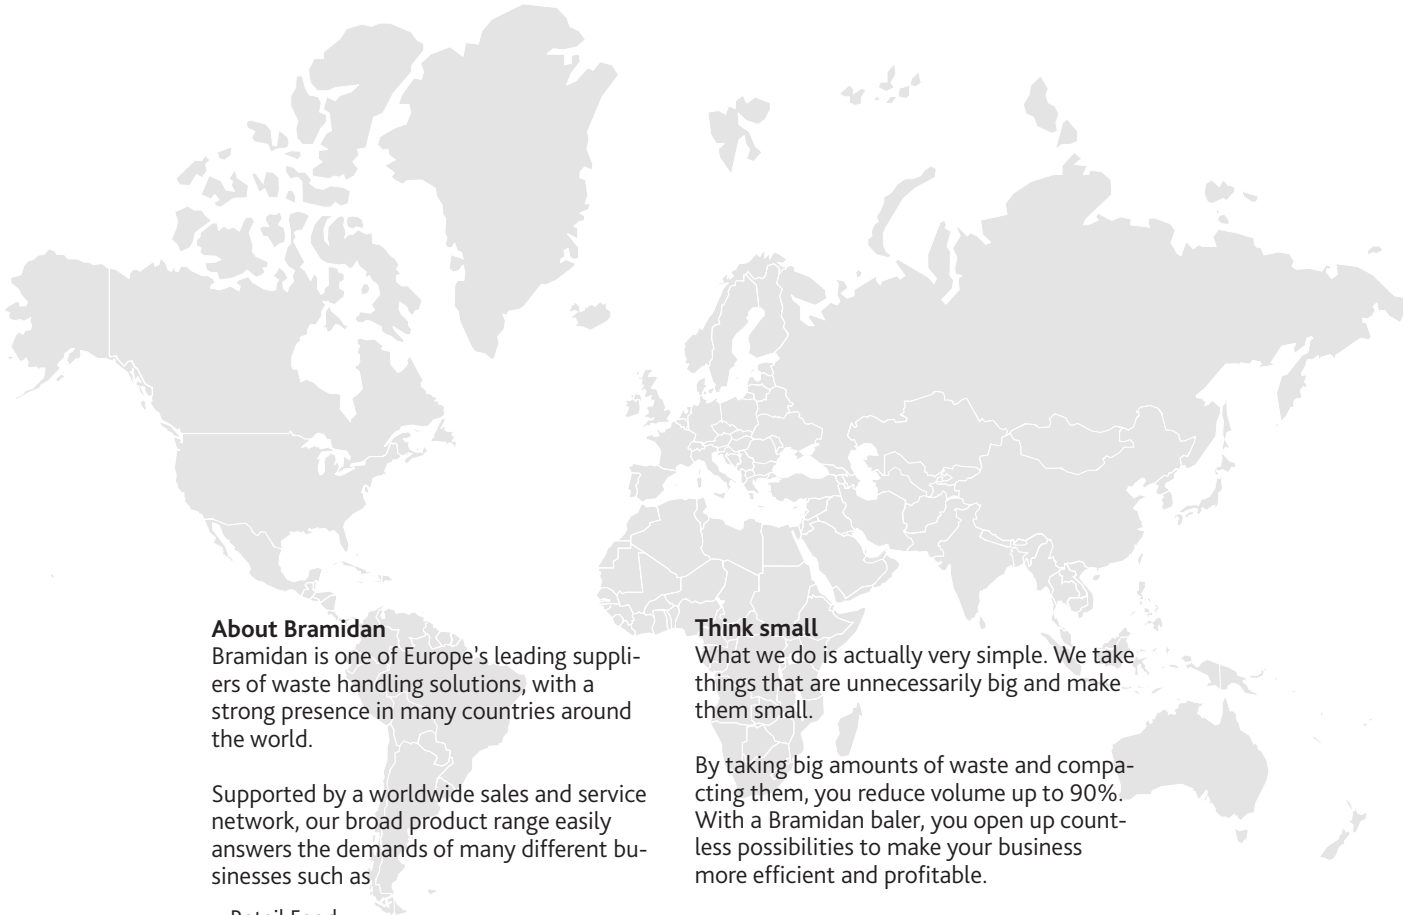

We can help you choose the right baler solution, so you will not only experience better internal logistics, but also increased revenues on recyclable materials

Business advantages

- Reduced costs for waste handling
- Optimized working processes
- Better internal logistics

Think small

What we do is actually very simple. We take things that are unnecessarily big and make them small.

By taking big amounts of waste and compacting them, you reduce volume up to 90%. With a Bramidan baler, you open up countless possibilities to make your business more efficient and profitable.
